D7SAT 's 66 Hardest Transitions

If there's one part of SAT Writing that almost every student underestimates, it's transitions. This question type might seem straightforward, but choosing the right word can sometimes be surprisingly tricky.

This file contains 66 challenging transition questions, designed to highlight the key ways ideas connect on the SAT. By practicing with these questions, you can significantly improve your ability to identify relationships among sentences, choose the most effective transitions, and build the confidence to master this question type quickly and accurately!

Essential List of Tips:

- 1. Have your 'guess' answer first: Before checking the answer choices, try to think of the type of transition that logically fits the relationship between the sentences. You should identify whether the sentences show addition, contrast, cause&effect, or sequence.
- 2. Focus on the logic of the surrounding sentences: Pay close attention to what the sentence before and after the blank are doing. Either one of them might be providing an example, explaining a result, offering a contradiction, or adding more information.
- 3. Eliminate wrong options quickly: Cross out any answers that don't fit the relationship based on your prediction.
- 4. Plug in your choice and check: Insert the transition you predicted and read the sentence again to see if it flows naturally and logically.
- 5. Practice to build confidence: Regularly practicing with transition questions strengthens your ability to spot common patterns and trust your guess before looking at the options, which makes your approach faster and more accurate.

Nineteenth-century Modernista architects championed nature in their designs. Granted, the dramatic archways and botanical glass work of Palau Mornau, a Modernista private home designed by Manuel Raspall, couldn't exactly grow in a forest. _____ one sees natural influences in Raspall's penchant for curves (rather than right angles) and plant-and animal-inspired flourishes.
